

Equality is the condition that several people have of being of the same nature. But that is not the equality that we look for to talk about today, I'm talking about the Social Equality. This, is a value that defends that, apart of its nature, everyone has the same rights, liberties and responsibilities.

This reality is an utopy (a dream of a perfect reality in wich all happens without fights and in armony), and sadly, it is not achieved in any part of this planet.

The thing that doesn't miss in anywhere, is the other coin's face, the Unequality, but things have really improved in comparation with the ancient ages.

Unequality, comes from discrimination. To discriminate is to cut the liberties and rights of people who doesn't comply the same conditions as us, and there are many possibilities of discrimination (by race, religion, sexual orientation, gender...) and today we are going to see all of them.

We'll start talking about racism. This, is probably the most ancient way of discrimination that the human being has seen, it uses to come from the white people to any other races, people from Asia, Africa, America...). It can happens in many different ways: invasions, summisions, slavery..., and nowadays, although it is less extended (thanks to protests and revolutions like in South Africa or the USA), this way of thinking in some people yet.

Another unequality is the Religious Intolerance (currently discussed topic due to the terrorist actions in Paris or Barcelona). This intolerance consists in refusing other creences that are not ours. This discrimination has been practiced mainly by Christians along history, but currently it has emerged a branch of it called Islamophobia, that comes from the terrorists actions before mentioned. These actions have made some people think that muslims are violent, but they were made only by a fanatic group.

Now, let's talk about the unequality that is probably the one that most has foughted the Occidental Society against, Maleness. It defends giving rights and liberties only to men, leaving women mainly in domestic labours, without letting them working or participating in the society. And, although there are yet many things to improve about this, like the salary unequality, I think it is the one that has progressed more in recent times (but only in developed societies, thanks to protests of people like Malala Youstafai)

Following the unequality road, next stop is Homophobia, the refusing of the sexual diversity, that has been hated in most of the cultures, like the catholic or the muslim. In the undeveloped societies, this refusing is on the base yet. I think of all the progresses that we have seen, this is the most current. The LTGB Community has achieved reducing a lot the Working and Social Discrimination.

There are more inequalities, but we have seen the mains, and now, we will see a story that break them into two. This story specifically broke the racism and it became viral. It was written by a spanish journalist, and it was called "The Black". It is a bit long so we will sum up it.

This story starts in a university canteen, in Germany. A blonde-hair girl buys a soup and salad plate, and leaves it in a table with her coat. Then, she goes back to get the spoon and the fork. When she returns to the table, she notices a black boy eating her soup. Quickly, the girl thinks the boy probably doesn't have enough money or doesn't know the European customs, and decides to share the plate with the boy. He smiles, and eat at the same time that her. In a few time, they finish with the meal. After that, the boy leaves and the girl, sees the coat isn't there. She looks for it, and notices a table with a soup plate. And her coat. In that moment, the girl knows that the prejudices have made her do the biggest ridicule in her life. And precisely has been the life the one who has taught her that appearences lie. Down with the racism!

In fact, I think Racism or Xenophobia are a trap, a trap wich has our feet tied to the floor. I explain.

There are many that refuse people from other countries (usually poor countries, that have a bad name, for instance Romania or Albania), and think that they are thieves or delinquents (This is perhaps because sometimes there are Prostitution Webs or Stolen Jewels Traffic for instance from this countries, but they are a few part of people, that countries are not only that). Sometimes, this people that think they are thieves, have business, and they refuse foreign's CV's due to this way of thinking. Apart from this, people from these countries, often have a bad economic situation. And I think, if foreign's CV's are refused, they can't work and improve their economic situation, and they are going to follow being poor and having a bad name, so racists businessmen are going to refuse their CV's. It is the haddock that bites his tail, a trap without exit.

And this doesn't happens only in Racism or Xenophobia, I think it can happen also in Homophobia, or Maleness.

In homophobia, are many times confused gay people with degenerate ones that kidnap people and kids, so, if we don't stop confusing them, the LTGB movement, as the foreign people, is always going to be down.

It happens the same in Maleness, but I think here it is also lack of intervention of governments. I'm talking of maternity permissions and economic helps for women that have children. In some countries like Spain or Slovenia, there are not economic helps and the maternity permissions are short. Even there are business that burn women because they're pregnant and the business doesn't want to pay the permission. I know that this doesn't have much to do with what we were talking before, but if women can't work by the simple fact of having babies, they are going to prefer to stay at home and breed the children, making maleness stronger and staying in the world for years.

I know it's hard to fight with maleness, racism and all that inequalities, and, I don't want to sound corny, but I think the world's change has to start at us.

Because, if Human Being has achievements like surviving millions of years, can also change its way of life and thinking, that, comparated to surviving, or the human history phases, like the Industrial Revolution, the Discovery of Fire, or the East – West Schism, it has to be very, very easy
